Patrick Kingsley has tried more than 40 cases involving diverse legal claims and fact patterns in several different forums across the country. As a trial lawyer, he has tried both jury and non-jury cases and has represented clients in arbitrations, mediations and hearings before administrative law judges and referees. Patrick is a fellow of the American College of Civil Trial Mediators. He has also served as an adjunct professor at Rutgers University School of Law, instructing students on trial advocacy skills.

Patrick handles a wide variety of complex commercial disputes, focusing much of his practice on construction, surety and fidelity litigation. He represents owners, contractors, subcontractors, design professionals, sureties and building product suppliers in construction disputes involving claims for delay, unforeseen site conditions, poor workmanship, defective materials, design errors, liquidated damages, mechanics' liens, change orders, lost productivity, bid protests, warranty claims, performance bond claims, payment bond claims and indemnity claims.

RESULTS

- succeeded in obtaining the dismissal of a performance bond claim on the grounds that the owner failed to afford the contractor the right to attempt to cure its alleged construction shortcomings
- obtained the complete dismissal of a financial consultant from a $75 million RICO action
- secured an $8.1 million award in favor of an insurer for retro-premiums past due
- secured the dismissal of a surety from a multimillion-dollar suit which assisted the principal in obtaining a $36 million verdict for wrongful discharge
- obtained a defense decision in a multimillion-dollar cases involving severe brain injury allegedly caused by therapeutic radiation
- obtained a $3.1 million judgment on an indemnity claim brought by a surety against its indemnitors
- in a case of first impression in Pennsylvania, persuaded a court that a no-damage-for-delay provision necessarily defeated joinder claims against a contractor, a surety and an engineer
